

Have I Misjudged the Man

Paul N. Dion / Allen M. Dion

In the course of my life, I have seen both good and the bad.
People can impress me. Others may fall short.
But now, this man has taken hold. No other can compare.

CHORUS

Have I misjudged? Are we on our own now?
Has he waivered? Is the dream now over?
He's just a man.

So long ago, we were taught to respect and obey such a man.
We were told not to question.
Our role was to accept the commands and demands on our lives.
With time, things change.
And now it seems so strange, for I find myself questioning his plan.

He returns a hero of the church, but I see a man who's lost his way.
A wolf can cause destruction when the shepherd's head is turned.
A strong gate keeps the flock safe from harm.

Have I failed my mission? Is it time to push or retreat?
This man has impressed me, but why fall short now?
I must insist, I'll find a way, shine light on shadowed walls.

CHORUS

Have I misjudged? He's out in the cold now.
I won't waiver. This dream is not over.
I'm not a man!

None of his faults will matter.
With our guidance and your patience, he will thrive.
