

In the Shadow of His Soul

Paul N. Dion / Allen M. Dion

As God has guided me, I accept this as my role.
To walk beside this man in the shadow of his soul.
He won't admit he needs me, and it may well take its toll,
To walk beside the man in the shadow of his soul.

It won't always be rewarding, but my mission is now set.
I must guide this man to greatness, though I vow I won't forget.
To be the voice of reason, in a sense, I'll take control.
Yet walk beside this man in the shadow of his soul.

I will defend his honor. When it's needed, I'll console.
Provoke him into action and inspire him to be bold.
I will comfort and protect him but not forget my role.
Reflect his best intentions as the shadow of his soul.

It won't always be rewarding though my journey is now set.
I must guide this man to greatness, and I vow I won't forget
That I am just God's servant with a calling and a goal.
To walk beside this man in the shadow of his soul.
