

What is a Nun?

Paul N. Dion / Allen M. Dion

Knowing one's place is a virtue, but sometimes it has to be taught.
So putting this nun in her place will now be my number one sport.

She thinks she can waltz her way right to the top,
But surely she's sorely mistaken.
And so I am certain the curtain will fall when our dear holy father awakens.

Whatever happened to servitude?
Does she not know how things are?
Women are weak and can't think for themselves.
That's why God put men in charge.

What is a nun but someone to assist you?
Built to appease and to be on your side.
Decisions are hard, so then why even try it?
Best to be helpful, respectful, and quiet.

Now take a good look at her dark draping robes.
I think they disguise a much meaner demeanor.
Just look in her eyes, and you'll see such defiance,
Opposition, dissent, did I mention resistance?
I'm sensing some insolence.
Impertinence, non-compliance?

Now I shall give the old nun a good run.
This time she's met her match.
She must not survive. I will cut her controls.
Then swiftly arrange her dispatch.
